Studios. All 50 of the statuettes on display are hand-made. Taking more than 12 hours to complete, the statues are made of britannium (a steel alloy) and then dipped into a 24K gold plating. The statues each weigh more than 8 pounds and cost 400 US dollars to make. The statues will be in New York until 1 February. They then travel to Los Angeles to be displayed at the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences until the Academy Awards show on March 5. (APTV)
